

Native American Law Students Association Distinguished Speaker Series

The Modern Practice of Indian Law: Operating In and From Tribal Legal Spaces

Featuring Martha L. King

Partner at Fredericks Peebles & Morgan LLP

Monday, November 10, 2014

6:00 – 7:00 p.m.

Wittemyer Courtroom

University of Colorado Law School

Dinner reception to follow

Please join the Native American Law Students Association and the American Indian Law Program as we host Martha L. King, partner at Fredericks Peebles & Morgan LLP. Ms. King will offer creative and effective ways to manage some of the more difficult issues that arise in the modern practice of federal Indian and tribal law, including those related to federal, state, and tribal jurisdiction; tribal factions; and the provision of tribal governmental services. A dinner reception in Boettcher Hall will follow the lecture. This event is free of charge and open to all.

Co-sponsored by the Native American Law Students Association and the American Indian Law Program. Funded by the Student Fee Committee.
